DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 28-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by
McLain et al. (USPUB 2002/0144272)

With regards to claim 28, McLain et al. (USPUB 2002/0144272) teach a method to determine a global position of an object comprising of receiving from a plurality of local systems, data on the most likely position of the object (See figure 1)

With regards to claim 29, McLain et al. (USPUB 2002/0144272) teaches a system to determine the probability distribution of an object (Page 1 & 2; Paragraph 0012).

Claim Objections

Claims 1-27 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

With regards to claim 1, Lemelson et al. (USPN 6,084,510) teaches a system to determine the position of an object comprising a plurality of sensors (82; see figure 7)(figure 1), a data processor for combining the location data to generate a value indicative of the location (see figure 8).

With regards to claim 24, Faivre et al. (USPN 5,661,486) teaches a method to determine the position of an object comprising a plurality of sensors (2, 5; see figure 1), combining the location data and the uncertainty distributions to generate a value indicative of the object's location (4,6; see figure 1), combining the location data and the uncertainty distributions to generate a probability distribution.

Zhang et al. (USPUB 2002/0165837) and Rasmussen et al. teach uncertainty distribution, however there is no motivation found in the prior art of record to combine the references to arrive upon the claimed invention.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: prior art fails to teach the uncertainty distribution and the probability distribution of a position of an object within the sub-range. These are the features found in the claim(s), as they are claimed in the combination that has not been found, taught or suggested by the prior art of record, which makes these claim(s) allowable over the prior art.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Brown (USPN 5,311,194) teaches a GPS precision approach and landing system for an aircraft, Gounon et al. (USPN 5,757,314) teaches a method and apparatus for accurately determining the position of a masked point by satellite, Frei

Art Unit: 2863

(USPN 5,252,982) teaches a method of precise position determination, Cohen et al.

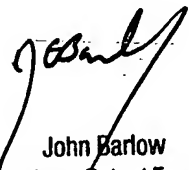

(USPN 5,572,218) teaches a system and method for generating precise position determinations, Pedersen et al. (USPUB 2002/0026431) teaches a fire detection system and Horvitz et al. (USPN 6,499,025) teaches a system and method for tracking objects by fusing results of multiple sensing modalities.
